How to be part of our WiseGP Community...

WiseGP has introduced a new page to the website- 'Contribute'.

We have been delighted by the growing WiseGP community with more GPs subscribing to our newsletter and contacting us with work to feature. After receiving several requests to advertise for primary care research study participants, we are now trialling a dedicated page on our website, 'Contribute to Primary Care Research', alongside a page on how you can contribute to our WiseGP community.

Contribute to Primary Care Research

If you're interested in taking part in research, take a look at the projects currently seeking participants. Taking part in a qualitative interview or survey could offer a brief insight into what these research studies involve, help improve the evidence we have to inform how we practice and possibly be a stepping stone to future involvement in research.

Please let us know if you have a primary care study to advertise for recruitment.

The screenshot shows the WiseGP website navigation bar with links for Home, About, WiseStories, WISDOM, GEMs, Newsletter, and Contribute. There are also buttons for Blog and Contact. Below the navigation bar, the 'WiseGP Community' and 'Primary Care Research' sections are visible. A large image shows a person's hands writing on a document. To the left of the image, there is text: 'If you're interested in taking part in research, here are some projects that are currently recruiting participants.' and 'If you would like to advertise your primary care study here, please get in touch.' Below the image, there is a table with the following headers: 'Title of Study', 'Who we're recruiting', 'What is involved', and 'How to participate'. A scroll bar is visible at the bottom of the table, and a small orange circle with an upward arrow is on the right side.

At WiseGP we recognise that more of the same won't fix general practice. Our resources aim to help WiseGPs and their teams to be part of the change needed to reclaim professional control of front-line general practice.

If WiseGP has inspired you to make positive changes in your everyday practice, we'd love to hear from you!

WiseGP Blog

The WiseGP blog features brief thought provoking reads on topics ranging from thinking differently about prescribing to creating mindlines to deal with everyday challenges in practice.

We'd like to feature more stories from you! Have you been inspired by a newsletter or GEM to make changes to your everyday practice? If so, please contact us.

WiseGP Newsletter

Reading this, you will have already subscribed to our monthly WiseGP Newsletter! Next month, our newsletter will return to the ongoing issue of burnout and highlight how evidence from recent research can help us to support colleagues and maintain our own health.

If you have a top challenge facing general practice that you would like us to feature, please get it touch!

You can have a look at our previous newsletters which feature top challenges including climate change, refugee and migrant health and the cost of living crisis using the link below.
